

GETTING THERE:

WORKS BY ANDREW ELLIS JOHNSON & SUSANNE SLAVICK

Godwin-Ternbach Museum, Queens College (CUNY)

FEBRUARY 9 – MAY 13, 2022

Ark I
by Susanne Slavick

Godwin-Ternbach Museum is presenting the exhibition addressing the timely themes of migration and immigration, political and social justice. Getting There: Works by Andrew Ellis Johnson and Susanne Slavick, is an exhibition of equally poetic and harrowing works by Carnegie Mellon University professors Andrew Ellis Johnson and Susanne Slavick.

Incorporating ink and mixed media on paper works by Johnson, and oil and mixed media paintings on paper and panel by Slavick, the exhibition explores the notions of mass movements of people displaced by war, famine, political repression, and climate change, coupled with writings by novelists, poets, anthropologists and journalists who have informed their projects and whose words they have included or cited. Among them are Jenny Erpenbeck, Lev Golinkin, Eliza Griswold, Mohsin Hamid, Ali Johar, Maria Melendez Kelson, Jason De León, Blas Manuel de Luna, Suketu Mehta, Yasser Niksada, Prageeta Sharma, Warsan Shire, Wisława Szymborska, and Vu Tran.

The museum is open Monday-Thursday 10am-4pm.

External visitors can view the exhibition online at www.gtmuseum.org.

All programs in conjunction with the exhibition are free and will be virtual or in-person.
