

ARTIST TALK: MATERIAL GIRL IN A MODERN WORLD

MONDAY, MAY 2, 2022 AT 6PM EST

Online via Zoom

For the past four years, Tiny Pricks Project has threaded the needle at the intersection of social media, the Trump presidency, craft, a pandemic, community art initiatives, and language.

In this talk, artist and activist Diana Weymar will discuss the history of Tiny Pricks Project and the way in which it has adjusted to different events and remained a grassroots initiative. “Desperate times, creative measures” has been the mantra of the project. How does this play out on a large scale and how do we use the “material” of our lives and times to create a material record?

This program is presented in conjunction with the exhibition Tiny Pricks Project. Program is FREE and registration is required.
